

norden

COL – Project:
Identity development and the critical thinking aimed at IT
Quiz

Statement

- 1) The article deals with - the development of identity, critical thinking and use of IT related to the retarded (mentally disabled persons).

Statement

- 2) The article deals with - the well-developed identity evident by the very personal core is the same over time and in different situations. You could say that the personal core is specific with stable features, boundaries, needs and with a particular life story.

Statement

- 3) The article deals with a definition of identity, which reads:
An internal psychological structure and a phenomenological experience - an experience of the individual's own feeling, the subjective experiences and shared values of social groups.

Statement

- 4) The article deals with a distinction between at least four levels of identity;
I-identity, which deals with fundamental object relations such that one's parents as role models with the acts of love they have shown a really integral part of one's own personal core. Being able to have realistic ideas about themselves and in relation to others.
The personal identity of conscious and realistic goals, basic values, needs and characteristics.
The social identity that ensures a sense of belonging to other social groups through relationships. The clarity of social roles, norms and social status.
The collective identity that deals with possible identification with the example being a Dane, Finn, from Latvia or from the Nordic / Baltic countries or having a particular religion.

Statement

- 5) The article shows that identity development requires 8 points met: - stability of relational interaction - the basis for identity is stability vs. significant adults - appropriate feedback and reflections of you and me function - identify himself through identification and also bounding over other - The ability for self-reflection - to see themselves from different positions and situations - the ability to function in social situations - understanding the "other's" values and ideals.

Statement

- 6) This article deals - three different kinds of cognition - thinking about dealing with the very practical approach and experiential learning. Thinking masters in contemporary .- to think about performing the more complex structures carried by the outer world into the learning system. You can choose from more experience and act on them. Here masters experience formation also in the past and present. – thinking what to say. Show abstract forms of oversight. At this level, you can create your own internal perceptions and therefore predictable situations. Here masters work experience in the past, present and future.

Statement

- 7) The article deals with - that in IT contexts, all linear programs - a step which goes after the next be easy to work with.

Statement

- 8) This article deals - The advantage of the present thinking is the great and simple precision in action and language. Here is a directedness toward the accurate and efficient. The problematic in the concrete thinking seen in the crude content and lack of progress view.

Statement

- 9) This article deals - The language "jokes" with multiple meanings and play with rhyme-words are some of the competences gained with his cognition - to think about!. In the IT context, Mind Mapping systems here are applicable: see www.quintura.com.

Statement

- 10) The article sets - to think about and use of advanced bases built on Mind Mapping Systems and Meta Search Engines - see Dogpile, Zuula, planet search, GoshMe.